Assembly Votes U. S. Plan For Peace in Balkan Row

SOVIET RUSSIA AND SATELLITES ARE REVERSED

Johnson Claims Future Of U. N. and Greece Top Stake in Dispute

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 25 (AP)—The United States today won a decisive victory over Soviet Russia on a test vote in the Balkan dispute and demand that the United Nations assembly create a special committee to try once more to settle the whole conflict.

The U. S. also denounced Greece's Soviet-backed neighbors—Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia—and urged the assembly to find them guilty of helping guerrillas fight the Greek government.

The assembly's political committee, getting down to business quickly, first considered a request that Albania and Bulgaria, both non-members of the U. N., be allowed to take part in Balkan debate.

The U. S. agreed on condition that the two nations consent to accept any decision the assembly might make. The entire Russian bloc opposed this, contending that no strings should be tied to Albania and Bulgaria by the assembly.

The committee approved the American stand, 38 to 6. Russia, Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Ukraine, White Russia, Yugoslavia and Poland opposed. The Arab states abstained.

With Secretary of State Marshall sitting in the pilot seat behind him, Herschel V. Johnson, U. S. delegate on the committee delivered one of the strongest statements yet heard in the long Western power-Soviet struggle over the Balkans. He demanded:

1. That the assembly "make a finding that Albania, Bulgaria, and Yugoslavia, in contravention of the principles of the (U. N.) charter have given assistance and support to the guerrillas fighting against the Greek government."

2. That the assembly call on those three governments to "cease and desist from rendering any support in any form to the Greek guerrillas."

3. That the assembly establish a special committee to observe how the assembly regulations are carried out and to assist the four Balkan governments in settling their troubles.

4. That the special committee be authorized to recommend a special session of the assembly if the situation becomes sufficiently dangerous to warrant such a move.

5. That this committee should not be "unduly large" but that it should include representatives of Russia, United States, France, China and Britain.

After laying down what the U. S. thought should be done to settle once and for all the Balkans problem, Johnson said failure of the assembly to act might threaten the existence of Greece and of the U. N. itself.

"In the opinion of my government," Johnson said with grave emphasis, "the decision of the General Assembly in this case is crucial, both for the existence of Greece as a free and independent nation and for the United Nations itself. The failure of the United Nations to protect one small state can only endanger the security of other small states. The failure of the General Assembly to meet this issue squarely would inevitably lead to the belief that acts of this kind would be tacitly condoned in the future."

Scheduled Storm Fails To Put in Appearance

The tropical storm that was due to hit the East early yesterday failed to show up and the accompanying rains, scheduled to lash Pottstown, also stayed away.

Instead, the weather was somewhat warmer yesterday than during the earlier part of the week, with a maximum temperature of 62 degrees.

Clouds obscured the sun for most of the day, however, disappearing during the latter part of the afternoon.

Today's forecast calls for sunny and continued cool weather, with fair skies also on tap for tomorrow.

Taft Says U. S. Outlay Can't Cure Global Ills

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 25 (AP)—In one of the most comprehensive statements on U. S. foreign policy by a top ranking Republican Senator Taft (R-Ohio) tonight declared the possibility of what he termed an "international WPA" financed by the United States as a solution to the world's economic problems.

"I do not believe," he said, "America can save the world with money." At the same time Taft proposed the United States proceed without Russia should the Soviet withdraw from any real participation in effective action by the United Nations.

"In spite of the Inter-American agreements recently perfected at Rio de Janeiro, he declared, "I believe we should proceed without Russia to perfect a United Nations which will operate in a limited field."

The Marshall plan for economic aid to Europe, he added, should not be based on global lending, but should be governed instead by the principle of specific loans "for specific purposes only to pay for goods shipped from the United States."

In an address delivered before the World Affairs council of Tacoma, Taft accused the Democratic Administration of blundering and following a "Mr. Fixit Philosophy" in international affairs.

"We have won the war but we have lost the peace," he said.

"Successful though we were in all the military phases of the war, we face a condition in the world to

were questioned.

Central figure in the inquiry of the House committee on un-American activities in the Haens Eisler immigration case in Washington yesterday was George S. Messersmith (right), former assistant secretary of state. Messersmith is shown with Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State, before he was called to testify. Welles later was questioned.

Both men were taken to the hospital in a Good Will ambulance and Dr. R. A. Boykin said, "I am sure he (Peck) has no serious injuries."

Mrs. Anna Givin, Pottstown, R.D. 2, witnessed the accident and gave description of the collision.

"The coupe was zig-zagging down that road like the driver didn't have any control over it," she declared.

The other car was coming north, driving slow, but I don't think he had time to avoid hitting the other car as it started to come over the bridge."

Mrs. Givin stepped away from the door of a restaurant on the scene, and ran to the sedan.

"The man called, 'Lady, for God's sake, help me,' she continued, and I tried to help him. He said his chest hurt, so I loosened his shirt for him. Then he told me to look at the other driver."

"I opened the door, and he was unconscious on the seat, so I ran back and shouted for somebody to call the ambulance."

At Pottstown hospital, where he was discharged after his small cut was treated, Peck declared that he saw Peck's car speeding south on Route 100, apparently out of control, and that as he started across the bridge, Peck could not help hitting him.

Bystanders said that the two vehicles hit with such force that they rose in the air together, then settled with a crash.

The right side of the coupe was crushed so violently that the roof was buckled. It hit the fence on the east side of the road before it stopped, and the front was partially damaged.

Messersmith appeared before the committee in its inquiry to determine how German-born Eisler, now a Hollywood song writer, was admitted to the country in 1940. Eisler has testified that while he was once technically a Communist party member, he was never active and soon dropped out.

Messersmith told the committee his attention first was called to the Eisler case in a telephone conversation with communist Dorothy Thompson, who apparently thought the department of state could do many things for refugees that it could not do.

He was aware also, he said, of an interest shown by Mrs. Roosevelt in the case but emphasized that in handling the matter the department was guided solely by the law and was "not influenced by personal feelings."

Messersmith identified correspondence between himself and Miss Thompson and between himself and Coert Dubois, consul general at Havana.

He talked freely and gave details that he has never told before," Sgt. Ramer added.

District Attorney Frederick B. Smillie said today that he felt that Fay's confession was a "good one," and that it should have been investigated further.

He declared that he was ready to begin action against Fay as soon as he was returned to the county from Pittsburgh, but that at present, the case was in the hands of the State police and that he himself would not initiate proceedings to bring the confessed slave here.

Smillie and State police officials met on Sept. 16, at which time the district attorney affirmed his willingness to prosecute the case.

A surprise stunt will climax the rally.

The Trojans will open their season under the lights against the Spartans at 8 o'clock on Franklin Field.

Death Beats Santa Claus To Her Party

DECATUR, Ill., Sept. 25 (AP)—Carolyn Robb's big "Christmas party" was all set for Saturday at 10 a.m.

The kids of the neighborhood were ready, too.

There was a brightly trimmed tree, and plenty of presents. They poured in from all parts of the country after sympathetic readers learned that the little four-year-old was partially paralyzed by brain cancer and had little time to live.

But Carolyn died late today after just a brief preview of Christmas. Some of the gifts were opened at a small party the past Monday. A little toy Santa sent by a two-year-old boy in New York was perched atop a pile of letters from doll after doll and other toys we're unwrapped.

Among them were more than 100 recordings of "Jesus Loves Me," which Carolyn had named as her favorite hymn.

Her father said Carolyn sensed that she was dying.

From her bed, the little girl had said with a smile: "I'm happy because it's Christmas now." For a while I thought I would miss the party because the doctor has been here so much."

BEATRICE FAIRFAX'SAdvice to the Lovelorn*Alcoholic Husband Causes Grief

OUT of 28 years of married life, "Mrs. H." has had less than ten years of happiness. The rest have been years of tragedy, and a type of tragedy, unfortunately, all too common, for her husband loved alcohol better than he loved his family. Once she left him, got a job and supported herself and her aged mother, but illness made life so difficult that when her husband begged her to come back, promising he would "behave," she returned to him.

"He did behave," she says, "for a week." Then the whole thing started all over again. "I have tried to make the best of things," she writes, "hoping and praying he will change. But it isn't easy to have dinner ready and have him walk in like a king four or five hours late and want his meals served to him. He came home to me right two and a half hours late, with ice cream for mother and me, which was supposed to make up for everything. I refused to give him his meal, which I had over a pot of water, telling him if he wanted to eat, to heat it up himself. He called me such a string of vile names, I slapped his mouth. He pushed me, and my heart jumped so rapidly that I just walked away. He said he hoped I would drop dead and shouted that I am a no-good bum."

"Once I had him in court because he used to push me around and throw things at me, and he was put on probation, our one of his drinking cronies knew the probation officer and had it fixed so I lost heart.

"Our children are married but seldom visit us as they don't want their children in his company, as he drinks incessantly, even at home, and his language is vile. For the same reason, no one else visits us either."

"When he is sober, which is only on his days off, he tells me I shouldn't mind what he calls me; I should be used to what he says; he doesn't mean it; and he loves me. Could you believe, Miss Fairfax, that a man loved you if he treated you like that? Anyway, I don't want that kind of love and I have got to do something, but what? My mother is 83 and getting feeble. No one has room for us, so it's like hitting my head against a stone wall."

In a situation like this, I don't believe there is anything for a woman to do but to walk out and leave her husband until he makes his own sincere decision to take himself in hand. And by taking himself in hand I mean to make up his mind to seek help in curing himself of the drink habit.

Of course, to leave a drinking husband is something that is frequently easier said than done. This woman said in her letter that she has heart trouble, so that getting a job to support herself and her mother may be out of the question. To go to court for a legal separation whose terms would direct her husband to pay her a certain amount each week, would be an easy matter under the circumstances. The hard thing would be to make sure of getting the money.

The only possible thing, at the moment, would seem to be for this woman to appeal to her children for help. If, as she suggests, they can find no room in their homes to take herself and her mother in, then surely they should be able, among them, to contribute enough to make it possible for them to find a place of their own where they can live at peace.

Communists & Public Office

TWO-THIRDS of the U. S. people think there should be a law to prevent admitted Communists from holding either public office or an executive post in a labor union, the latest Fortune Survey of Public Opinion reported yesterday.

Nearly half the people also would favor a law barring admitted Communists from employment in a large corporation. About one person out of three would extend such legislation to cover those merely suspected of having Communist sympathies.

Conducted by Elmo Roper, the current Fortune survey studied American attitudes toward Russia herself as well as toward U. S. Communists, and disclosed a profound change in the public's opinion of Russia since the war.

Two years ago a plurality of Americans looked on Russia as peace-loving; today 66 percent consider her aggressive.

The Survey question:

"Would you describe Russia as a peace-loving nation, willing to fight only if she has to defend herself, or as an aggressive nation that would start a war to get something she wants?"

Replies follow, compared with those of 1946:

September	This
1945	Survey
Peace-loving	39% 12%
Aggressive	38 66
Both (volunteered) ..	8 6
Express no opinion ..	15 16

U. S. policy toward Russia gets faint praise both from those who trust and those who distrust Soviet intention, the Survey finds. Among those who see a warlike Soviet Union, 45 percent says present U. S. policy is intelligent, 34 percent says "no"; while among those who think Russia is peace-loving, 46 percent believes our policy is wise, 43 percent finds fault.

Fortune's questions on U. S. Communists follow, with replies:

"There has been a lot of talk about what should be done about the Communists in this country. Do you believe that there should or should not be a law preventing people who admit they are Communists from holding any kind of public office? (an executive position in a labor union? a job in a large corporation?)"

Public Executive Corp.

Office in union job

Should not be a law ... 17 17 29

The percentage who oppose legal restrictions upon admitted Communists is higher among the college trained (28 percent) and the professional and executive group (29 percent), Fortune noted.

"These people are no doubt aware of the dangers inherent in having Communists in positions of responsibility, but they apparently see an even greater danger in depriving a political group of its civil rights."

To Conserve Meat and Grain

THE American Meat Institute has launched a program designed to provide American consumers next year with a maximum quantity of meat with a minimum of inconvenience, and at the same time help conserve grain for possible feeding of hungry people overseas.

The plan involves making the best use next year of the available supply of corn, the crop of which has been drastically reduced this year as a result of drought and hot weather. It also takes into account prospects of early frost damaging corn which was planted late last Spring because of floods and rainy weather.

The meat packing industry intends to cooperate closely with the agricultural colleges, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and other agencies. It is planned to bring intensively to the attention of farmers and livestock producers the results of scientific studies made by the colleges and the Department which are designed to point the way to the best utilization of feeds of all kinds and to extend the corn available.

PUNKIN CORNERS,
Editor, The Mercury,
Dear Sir 'n' Brother:
September 25.

Wal, I see by the papers where the Yankees and Dodgers will play the world's series. Eph Werte, who's a Yankee fan, won't say what his club will do. He'll cross that Brooklyn bridge when he comes to it.

Zeb Cornecks the greatest ditsster of this neck of the woods, says a real "subway series" would be a set of games played between those two cellar occupants, the Phillips and the Browns.

And say: That second-hand car I bought now has become a first class headache. It certainly isn't what it was jacked up to be.

Board Is Only Figurehead

To the Editor: After sitting in on the "suspension hearing" of one of our patrolmen and hearing the verdict given by the Civil Service Commission, I got the impression the Civil Service board is nothing more than a "name" here in Pottstown.

Why did they sit there listening to a bunch of nonsense and not investigate the charges against the officer? Why did they not ask to have the charges read openly at the hearing?

From what I heard, it seems to me that the burgess can suspend an officer without consulting the Civil Service board or without a hearing at the request of the accused. Why wait to air our grievances before council?

Should the burgess take such action without word from the Civil Service board? If that is the case, let's get rid of the board. Let the burgess be the board.

Do we want a Civil Service board to back up our boys on the force or do we want to lose the force? Should the board be just a name and a figurehead?

There are quite a few of us who would like to know the score. Let's have the dope in full. Let's back up the force to the full extent.

Prepare for War!

To the Editor: Victor F. Patterson in "For the Living of These Days" in Saturday's Mercury said, "You are not seeking to weave into your character the traits of God when you talk about the inevitability of a Third World War."

It is such propaganda as this that found us unprepared for the Second World War and put our backs to the wall with hundreds of thousands of the flower of our youth dead and maimed.

If we don't plan for defense in a Third World War now, we're going to be wiped out. Now is the time to prepare and not after the Third World War's Pearl Harbor.

Let us not be caught napping again.

I am sure that self-defense against a villainous enemy is a "trait of God."

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

RALEIGH B., 20, works in a grocery store.

"Dr. Crane, I wrote you about my problem several weeks ago," he started, as we were talking together following my address to a grocer's convention.

"Before I received your letter of reply, however, you discussed a case which was a dead ringer for my own, so I felt much better to know I wasn't the only fellow in the world with that dilemma."

"Dr. Crane, do you find that mental troubles fall into groups as do medical problems?"

I'm glad that Raleigh brought up this question today, for it is certainly true that psychological ailments fall into fairly definite classifications.

Many of you readers from time to time have doubtless felt that I was discussing your own case in this column, because the symptoms sounded exactly like those you have.

But you must remember that human beings are very much alike, so your case may be duplicated a hundred times in one week's supply of mail which reaches my desk.

In medicine if I were to name the chief symptoms of appendicitis, then most of you who have had such attacks, would probably think I was describing your individual case.

So it is with those of you who have a neurosis, or who are shy or stutter, or suffer from innumerable fears and obsessions. Just take heart, therefore, when you read such a case, and be reassured from the fact that your trouble is very common.

There is an old saying that misery loves company, and it contains much truth. Young people often feel that their problems are unique in human history and therefore cannot be solved.

As soon as they learn that thousands of others have the identical complaints, they are already helped before any further advice is given them.

Imagine the terror, for example, of a young person who believes he will go insane because at some time or another in the past he indulged in self-sex practices.

I've been consulted by numerous college men and women who were nervous wrecks simply because they still believed the superstition that insanity follows such practices.

Too timid to discuss their problem with other young people or with parents and teachers, thousands of such men and women write to me as a last resort.

It is really tragic to see how much needless suffering and misery afflict mankind when we have scientific facts which will quickly eliminate such terrors.

You could hear the deep sighs of relief from thousands of readers who slough off their needless worries and superstitious fears as a result of reading this daily column, or from obtaining confidential advice by letter, you would understand not only why I consider it a far greater educational service than my university teaching, but also understand why the newspapers continue to offer this column to your communities.

In some of the larger cities, for instance, I receive mail from 15,000 to 25,000 readers each year from a single newspaper. The newspapers are therefore conducting an extension university course in human behavior through the medium of this column, which is unequalled by any college today.

The mail input averages between 3 percent and 5 percent of a newspaper's circulation per year, but some papers have passed the 7 percent figure.

WASHINGTON

Archduchess Inspired LaGuardia Achievements

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The late Mayor La Guardia might never have become the nation's foremost exponent and artist of municipal government if he had not affronted an archduchess of the decadent Austrian Empire when he served as the 21-year-old consular representative of the United States at Flume.

It is an unpublished episode in the picturesque and tempestuous career of the "Little Flower" but it is, perhaps, the most characteristic. It illustrates his unique combination of honesty, courage, human straightforwardness, and the elfin, impish spirit which baffled or angered Presidents, Cabinet members and Tammany politicians in subsequent years. It reveals his capacity for transforming a crusade into an escapade.

REGULATIONS: It was the summer of 1904, and the drowsy, Italian hamlet was the scene of feverish preparations for welcoming Archduchess Maria Josefa. Her royal outriders had brought word that, when she arrived on her inspection trip, the place must be spic and span. The portly burgomaster himself supervised the scrubbing of sidewalks, the washing of windows and removal of rubbish from the cobbled streets.

Her Highness had also warned that 500 prospective emigrants to the U. S. must be removed from the sun-spattered plaza, where it was the custom to herd them for many days in advance of sailing. "Put the smelly lot in the hold of the vessel," her advance agent instructed the burgomaster.

But when the latter's representative notified La Guardia, he pulled himself to his full, Napoleonic, five-feet, two-inches, and roared in his quaint falsetto:

"Her Highness may boss your burgomaster, but she cannot intimidate an official of the United States!"

As justification, he cited non-existent medical regulations of the American immigration laws. Years later at Washington, he sponsored legislation of the hygienic sort he improvised at Flume.

REFORMER: The red-faced, corpulent burgomaster was infuriated at this defiance. He dispatched his gendarmes to find the American Consul, and force him to rescind his action. They searched the hotels, the clubs, the cafes, the harbor craft from noon until sunset, but La Guardia had vanished.

It was not until the weary and exasperated Austrian returned home in the evening that he discovered the missing offender's hideout. He had spent a pleasant afternoon with the burgomaster's attractive, young wife on the balcony of their home overlooking the dazzling, blue sea, knowing that they would not look for him there. But he accomplished his humanitarian purpose.

POLITICS: Maria Josefa's imperial father was indignant over this insult to his favorite daughter, and our State Department in those days was responsive to diplomatic suggestions from royalty. Young La Guardia soon decided that it was time to look for another job. Returning to the U. S. he worked as an interpreter at Ellis Island while studying law at night and thus entered on his career in politics.

He never liked royalty since, when an American regiment of World War I made Queen Marie of Rumania an honorary colonel, he protested to the War Department with a bristling letter. He frequently urged foreign nations to "send us more workers and fewer crowned heads." Upon his death, however, there were messages of gratitude from all these peoples, whom he had fed as UNRRA director.

SHOWMANSHIP: There was usually some beneath La Guardia's sensationalism. He knew that, with his handicaps, he could command public and political attention—and action—only through showmanship. When he dramatized 1922's high prices by extracting an expensive cut of steak from his pants pocket in the well of the House, or when he concocted an illegal drink legally during prohibition days, beseeching Broadway cops to arrest him, he was indulging in effervescent theater.

"I know," he once confided in almost a prayerful and fearful tone, "it is damn hard to be a reformer in the richest nation in the world!"

HARDSHIP: A background of bitter hardship inspired all his activities for bettering the lot of the less favored and fortunate. It embittered him against politicians who saw public office only as a vehicle for advancing themselves or building heartless machines such as the Tammany he exiled from City Hall for 12 years.

Although born on New York's East Side, he spent his early boyhood at Army camp in Oklahoma, where the only shade came from the flapping flag. As a boy correspondent for a St. Louis newspaper at Tampa, he saw his father, an Army bandmaster, die of the spoiled beef dished out by military bureaucrats. He never forgot that incident, and never let later quartermasters forget it.

IMPROVEMENT: He lived many years in dark tenements and in gloomy, back rooms as he earned a living and got an education in New York City. From that experience derived his love of lights, and he spent his last weeks sitting for hours in the sunlight of his garden in a wooded suburb of the metropolis he had helped to build and brighten with parks, playgrounds, broad highways and model tenements.

AS A CHILD AND YOUNG MAN: He had to eat so economically that, as he once remarked, "I thought that food grew in cans." Those meager memories made him partial to things green, and he became an expert at throwing together a salad. He was such a connoisseur of food that he would have made an excellent chef if he had not entered politics. Next to Capitol Hill and New York City Hall, he ranked his kitchen.

Jacob A. Heil, proprietor of the Gladwynn cafe at 30 South Charlotte street, but police said that no stolen cars had been reported recently.

Two men escaped with minor injuries earlier last night when their car was forced off Route 422 at Pleasant View road, Santago, and adswiped a telegraph pole.

The driver and his passenger were Charles Mourar, 37, Santago, and Joseph White, 48, of 451 High street. Mourar suffered a laceration of the scalp, and White received a deep laceration above the right eyebrow.

Both were discharged from Memorial hospital, where they were taken by a passing truck driver, after treatment in the dispensary.

Mourar said that he was driving east on Route 422 when he saw an automobile swerve out of line and approach him head-on.

To avoid the crash, he swung sharply off the road, cutting across the lawn of William F. Hippie and sideswiping the pole.

His car had the right fender crumpled and nearly torn off, the right door badly dented, the right windshield smashed, and minor damage to the left fender and bumper, which just touched an adjacent signpost.

Deeply indented tire tracks leading to the pole showed graphically how sharply Mourar swung his car off the road to avoid a collision.

The second driver did not stop, he declared.

Lions Members Pledge Full Support To Plan for Manufacturers Exhibit

Assurances that Boyertown will have its first manufacturers exhibit were pledged last night when members of Boyertown Lions club approved the plan of Rudolf Abrams, president of the club, and agreed to give their support to its success. Abrams outlined his proposal for the exhibit of products of Boyertown which enter into national and international commerce before club membership at a special board meeting at which the club acted as a committee of the whole.

Plans call for the exhibit to be held sometime in December in Boyertown High school. The main exhibition room will be in the school gymnasium and the auditorium will be used for other displays. The board of school directors has approved the use of the building.

Abrams has contacted practically every industry in the area during the past few weeks and has secured their assurances of co-operation in preparation of exhibits.

When the exhibit takes place, it will mark the initial display of Boyertown products by local manufacturers here. Abrams, in his presentation to club members last night, told that there are more than 25 industrial plants in the community and practically every one which he contacted had agreed to exhibit its products. The school auditorium will be used for exhibitions of industrial films which manufacturers here may wish to show, he said.

The show, according to present tentative plans, will be held during the Christmas holidays.

That it will be unusual was emphasized by the local president when he said that such an exhibit could successfully be held only once every ten or 15 years.

Abrams will serve as general chairman of the committee to plan the event, while Murray A. Crull was named head of the finance section. Lamar B. Smith was named chairman of the planning committee, with Earl H. Keim selected as chairman of printing and advertising.

Highlighting his remarks with more than 40 samples of his work, William C. Hampton, woodcarver of Collegeville, described how he happened to enter this field professionally and told members of the Lions club of the joys which his creative endeavors bring him.

Hampton, an engineer by profession, told how a curt remark on the part of a prospective employer enticed him to go into the woodcarving business on his own. He also told of the great age of the Sequoia tree, which he described as the oldest living thing on the face of the earth—more than 5000 years in age. The redwood, he added, is the tallest tree in the world, one of them on the West coast measuring 365 feet high. Even the oak of the eastern states, he said, lives to a ripe old age of 400 to 500 years.

Annual Hallowe'en Parade Scheduled To Be Held Nov. 3

Boyertown's celebrated Der Gnom Karneval is scheduled for Monday, Nov. 3. It was decided at a meeting of the committee in charge Wednesday night at Meist's News agency.

Ghosts, goblins, and spooks will again ride the town as marchers and floats compete for $1200 in prize money plus special awards.

Renamed chairman of the new-famous annual Hallowe'en parade was Warren "Red" Knode, who is a veteran all-organization of such events. Lloyd L. Tabor was named treasurer by Knode, when Earl Brumback found it necessary to resign that post.

Knode said that letters to merchants appealing for funds for prize money would be in the mails in the next few days and urged immediate action on their part. He asked that all returns be made by Oct. 15 and sooner, if possible.

Rain date for the parade is Wednesday, Nov. 5. The committee decided to bar motorcycles, motor scooters, bicycles and horses from the parade.

The committee will meet again on Monday at Meist's News agency, at which time the prize list will be made out. Serving on the planning group are Henry Bauer, Herbert Schultz, P. Quinn Roth, Paul Weller, Russell Croll, Morris Deysher, Walter LeFevre, Norman Gotwals, Harry Gilbert, Knode, the committee chairman; and Labor, the treasurer.

The high school football band will make its appearance tomorrow under the baton of Paul S. Hagen Jr., conductor.

"The Cub," student newspaper, is scheduled to appear next week for the first time this school year.

Girls of Junior and Senior High school grades yesterday heard Mary Stuyvesant, of a large extract company, talk on points of good grooming in the school auditorium. The meeting was sponsored by the Good Grooming club under supervision of Dean of Girls Mary Louise Purnell and Mrs. Marjorie R. Bashore, teacher of English.

Royersford - Spring CityHARLEY B. BRANDRETH, Rep.
Third Avenue and Main Street, RoyersfordBusiness Women Hear Address by
E. Arnold Forrest

E. Arnold Forrest returned to his native Spring City last night to address a dinner-meeting of the Cheshmont Business and Professional Woman's club. The affair took place in Liberty hall with 45 attending.

Mr. Forrest, who was born in Spring City and educated here, until he went to college to study law, spoke to the group on "Legislation in a Democracy," after recalling interesting reminiscences of the years he spent in Spring City.

Now a resident of Conshohocken, he is a former member of the State Legislature. A prominent member of Montgomery County Bar association, of which he is president, he is the Republican candidate for district attorney of Montgomery county.

In charge of the program was Miss Edna Yeagle, who introduced Miss Phyllis Stafford chairman of legislation, who in turn introduced Mr. Forrest. Other members of Miss Stafford's committee are Mrs. Dora Murdoch and Miss Ruth Ann Powell.

Musical numbers were provided by Misses Barbara and Nancy Witt, accompanied by Miss Jeanette Stipa.

Mrs. Dorothy Edwards, club president, conducted the business meeting. Announcement was made of a district meeting of District 10, to be held in St. John's Lutheran church, Norristown, Nov. 1.

State Department Requests Action on 3 Seized Soldiers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP) — A military commander's protest having proved unavailing, the State department said today it would take the case of three American soldiers, seized by Yugoslav troops direct to the Yugoslav government.

A protest of Maj. Gen. T. S. Avery, commander of the British-American forces at Trieste, has produced "no results," Michael McDermott, State department press officer, said today.

Consequently, he said, the department will take the case up "immediately" with the Yugoslav government.

An American officer and two enlisted men, according to an official announcement by headquarters of the American forces in Trieste, were forced across the Trieste frontier at gunpoint by Yugoslavs.

The trio has been identified as Lt. William Van Atten, East Orange,

Rear Admiral Russell S. Berkey (above), commander of the New York naval base said yesterday in an address to the New York Propeller club that complete military registration of every man and woman from 15 years up was the only way to insure national security in the event of another war.

The corporals must surface to consume a fish after he has caught it under water.

KIWANIS SHOW —

She was seen in an eye-appealing dance while Betty Wersler greatly pleased with a vocal number. Ruthy Brunton and "Peanuts" Hartline were very effective in a Spanish waltz. Mary Huff made an attractive Miss Muffett and she displayed her clear voice to advantage in a vocal solo. Jean Fulmer, impersonating Jeannette MacDonald, was heard in a Victor Herbert aria.

After the show, the Junior members of the cast were guests of the Kiwanis club at the club-sponsored Jive Junction in the YWCA gymnasium. Dancing and refreshments were on the program.

Chaperones were Mrs. A. Ralph Thomas, Mrs. Harry W. Burian Sr., Mrs. John B. Hartenstein, Mrs. Alex Tidwell and Mrs. Edna Eagle.

Senior members of the cast were guests of the club at the Brookside Country Club. A buffer supper was served.

President Karl R. Stone announced the club was greatly appreciative of the courtesies shown by the Pottstown School board, the Pottstown Mercury and the general public. Special thanks were extended to members of the cast and the director, Richard F. Seward.

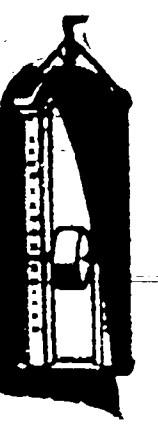

The club's committees were headed by President Stone as general chairman. Other committees were headed by the following: Program-Secretary Ralph Thomas; patrons-Vice President Harry W. Burian Sr.; tickets-Vice President John B. Hartenstein Jr.; talent—William Lamb Jr.; publicity—Carson C. Potter.

TRUMAN APPEAL —

Agriculture department official who served for a period as war food administrator, said that this country has enough food to give "minimum aid to countries on this side of the iron curtain" but that "they cannot have it if the livestock of this country get it."

Davis, now president of the St. Louis Federal Reserve bank, told a Washington meeting of the National Association of Supervisors of State banks:

"We have had a magnificent record in supplying food to Europe in the past two years and we would have no problem in continuing that record if we just bring back our day not much less threatening than existed in 1940."

Reviewing developments in establishment of a bipartisan foreign policy, Taft said the Republicans "have tried not to rock the boat in subscribing to the bipartisan position."

"But the Republican Congress," he asserted, "was limited in its field of action and the President for the most part controlled the reins in foreign affairs."

"We have had a magnificent record in supplying food to Europe in the past two years and we would have no problem in continuing that record if we just bring back our years compared with $16,500,000,000 spent on foreign aid in that period.

"It may be we could spend less on military forces if we spent more to maintain conditions on which democracy and peace depend," he said.

"We can't very well continue to spend as much as we have on both," he asserted, adding that a choice must be made between "unattractive alternatives" which point up to these questions:

1. "How much are we going to make available to maintain peace through provision of food and productive facilities to get democracies back on their feet?" and

2. "How much are we going to spend preparing for the next war?"

Valley Forge Man Addresses Doe Club On Military Bill

Col. Robert O'Donnell, of Valley Forge, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Doe club last night at the Elks' home.

Choosing the topic, "Do We Need Military Training?" Lt. Col. O'Donnell stressed the need for the "Universal Military Training Program," which he said may be passed at the next session of Congress.

"We hope for no future war, but hope alone will not prevent it. We need strong defense, weapons and trained and capable men."

"On graduating from high school, a boy at 17 could volunteer or at 18 automatically enter the service. Under this new bill the training would not interfere with the high school or college as long as it exceeds the boy's 21st birthday anniversary."

"On entering the service, the trainee would enter the camp nearest his home and be grouped according to the physical, religious and social standpoints and an advisory board would be able to help the individual's problems."

At the conclusion of his talk, Lt. Col. O'Donnell answered questions from the audience and asked support on the bill if and when Congress passes it.

Following the business meeting, at which Mrs. Jean Sotter, president, presided, a birthday party was held for the members celebrating their anniversaries in July, August and September. Hostesses were Mrs. Pay Speer, Miss Virginia Leh, and Mrs. LaVerne Bechtel.

Trojans Open Grid Season With Upper Merion Tonight

SEVEN SENIORS IN LINEUP FOR LOCAL SCHOOL

Kickoff Scheduled for 8 o'clock; Trojans Seek
Fifth Win Over Spartans

Pottstown High's Trojans lift the lid off another football season tonight when they turn on the lights at Franklin Field and play host to Upper Merion's Spartans. The kickoff is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Coach Heber T. Meyers will be starting his third year of coaching at Pottstown tonight when he leads his Trojans onto the field in quest of their fourth straight victory at the hands of Upper Merion.

This will be the fourth time the Spartans have come to Pottstown to open the Trojans' grid season, and the lads from Upper Merion have yet to return to their home grounds with a victory. The past year, the Spartans dropped a 13-7 decision to Coach Heber T. Meyers' gridiron.

Seven seniors will be in the Pottstown lineup when the game gets underway tonight, and the other four positions will be filled by juniors. Three of the eleven starters are regulars back from the 1946 season, and the other eight saw plenty of action the past year as substitutes.

Danny Ludwig, little halfback who drew a lot of praise from the fans for his blocking chores, and Gene Fecak, tall returning end, have been named co-captains for tonight's tussle with the Spartans. Both were starters the past year and are sure to start every game this season. The other 1946 regulars who will be in tonight's starting lineup is Pete Shaner, 190 pound tackle.

The Trojans have had six weeks of practice, and Meyers thinks the boys are ready to go from here. With the aid of his assistants, Morrell Grigg and Bill McCabe, Meyers has worked hard with the hopes of giving Pottstown High another winning grid team. Since Meyers came to Pottstown, his football teams have won 12 games and have only lost five.

Bobby Mauger will be the starting quarterback while Melvin "Toot" Howard and Ludwig will be the halfbacks. Bob "Chubby" Stouch will start at fullback. The Spartans bring a team of veterans to Pottstown in quest of their first win over the Trojans. Ten lettermen are back from last year and a lot of reliable replacements are on hand.

Paul McKernan, Ken Davis and Zeke Ostroski are three boys the Spartans are happy to have in the backfield, and it will be these three boys the Trojans will have to watch tonight.

The Upper Merion line is filled with experience and has a lot of strength in Bill Wills, returning center from 1946, and Alex Waldony, big left tackle.

The Spartans will be playing their second game under their new coach, Tom Campion. In the season's opener, Upper Merion bowed by a 31-6 score to Ambler, but the team showed a lot of fight and still expects to have a successful season this Fall.

Louise Suggs Keeps Tourney Favorite Role

DETROIT, Sept. 25 (AP)—Escaping a major upset by an eyelash, Louise Suggs, 24-year-old golfing ace from Lithia Springs, Ga., kept her role of tournament favorite alive today in the 47th Women's National Amateur championship.

The trim little shotmaker swept into the semifinals with a dramatic 1-up decision over dark-haired and dead game Mary McMullan, 20-year-old star from Green Bay, Wis.

You won't have to wait 'till next year to see Curt Simmons pitch. Come out and watch the phenomenal fire-ball throw his high, hard one at the home-run-happy Giants. This sensational southpaw makes his first start before local fans. Dick Koehler, Temple athlete who made batters' eyes pop in the Eastern League, will throw his left-handed slants in another of the games against the New Yorkers. Come out—get a preview of next year's standouts!

Bill Herman Resigns Post as Manager of Pittsburgh Pirates

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 25 (AP)—President Frank E. McKinney of the Pittsburgh Pirates announced tonight that Bill Herman has resigned as manager of the team.

The announcement was made at a press conference of the Pittsburgh Pirate owners. Herman also was present but did not comment immediately.

Herman's contract calls for him to manage the Pirates next year. In this connection, McKinney said:

"Herman is remaining with our organization. What his future will be we have not decided. We have no immediate plans for a successor."

Herman, who was present at the conference of officials, left immediately after the meeting broke up. His only comment was that he had not made up his mind whether to stay with the Pirate organization in 1948.

Play General Manager Roy Hamey said that in event if Herman does not choose to remain with the team, the club will honor his contract which Hamey said calls for "approximately $25,000."

"We wouldn't duck that," said Hamey.

McKinney, commenting of the Pirates' last-place finish, said:

"We have talked to Billy at some length. He is not apologizing and we are not criticizing him, but we felt that some changes should be made. Bill felt, too, it would be to the best interest of all concerned if he resigned. We are not parting company. He is welcome to remain in the organization. We still have the greatest respect for his ability and his managerial strategy."

McKinney said that the Pirates "are extremely grateful" to the Pittsburgh fans who have enabled the club to set a new attendance record of about 1,300,000 for the season. He added:

"We will continue every effort and spend all the money that is necessary to give Pittsburgh a winning baseball club. However, as far as this season is concerned, we will end in the red. We are not in this business to make money. All we want to do is give Pittsburgh a winning team and that is what we intend to do."

FORMER ARMY COMMANDER in the Mediterranean theatre, Lt. Gen. John C. H. Lee visits his son, Lt. Col. John C. H. Lee, Jr., in Iowa City, Ia., after his arrival from Italy. Soon after, Gen. Lee, who will retire, left for Washington where he will confer with Gen. Eisenhower and defend himself against accusations that he inflicted indignities on GIs under his command in Leghorn. "HOLD THAT HEMLINE!" is the student yell at Cleveland's Parker High School as cut-ups, bearing scissors, go about snipping inches from long skirts. Here Miss Bobbie Renner (with snippers), goes to work on Helen Ladd, whose skirts were considered too long. (International)

WITH A MALLET and chisel, sculptor Enrico Tadolini puts the final touches on a huge marble statue of Mother Cabrini which will stand in a special niche in St. Peter's Cathedral in the Vatican. The statue of the little Chicago nun who became the first American Saint was cut from a fifty-ton block of solid marble in Carrara, Italy. (International)

Morgenthau Says He Nearly Quits Cabinet In Rift With Roosevelt on Heavy Spending

WASHINGTON Sept. 25 (AP)—Henry Morgenthau Jr., said today he told President Roosevelt in April, 1936, he was "seriously thinking of resigning" as treasury secretary after the President had approved a program of heavy spending to combat the depression of the 1937-38 winter.

Writing in Collier's magazine in the second of a series of six articles based on his diary, Morgenthau said: "I was profoundly shaken" after learning of the new program from James Roosevelt, the President's son, Harry Hopkins, and others.

"My hopes for a balanced budget were dead," he wrote. "I felt that we were committed as a nation to an unsound policy."

However, the former cabinet member said Roosevelt talked him out of quitting, telling him "you have done a magnificent job" and accusing him of pique because the treasury was not consulted.

"The President then became ex- cused and said if I resigned now it would mean the destruction of the Democratic party, the creation of a third party and the loss of the administration program in Congress and that I would go down in history as having quit under fire," Morgenthau said.

He wrote that he "spent the next few hours in a gloomy daze of indecision" but finally decided he and the President had differed over an issue "concerning which, it is fair to say, there were at the very least two sides."

"It was moreover," he added, "a technical issue rather than a moral issue; a question of means not of ends."

Morgenthau also wrote of a January, 1938, luncheon conference he had with the President after which he noted in his diary it seemed Roosevelt was "going to get back the way (President) Cleveland did."

Here the former treasury secretary said parenthetically "there was an interval of Republican administration between Cleveland's first and second terms."

He quoted the President as saying at the luncheon:

"The next two years really don't count. They are over the dam. I think you and I can get by (and he smiled) with another three billion deficit in '40 and '41. (The fiscal year of 1941 would end his second term.) Then it will be up to whoever succeeds us which will most likely be either a conservative Democrat or a Republican. The thing for us to be thinking about is what will happen after we are out."

"After we are out, the next administration will meet likely before to economic and state expenditures and the chances are we will have choices as a result. We must have a plan. Our successors will not have a plan. After they have failed they will most likely send us to come back and solve the problem. It doesn't mean necessarily send for us to return to Washington, but at least call on us for a program."

Morgenthau said he was not certain what the President meant. At the time, he said, he assumed Roosevelt "had no idea of seeking a third term in 1940."

A balanced budget seemed within sight, Morgenthau wrote, until the stock market collapse on "Black Tuesday," Oct. 17, 1937. As unemployment increased, Morgenthau said the group which he described as "the spenders" argued strongly for a new pump priming program. In this group, he said, were Hopkins, James Roosevelt, Leon Henderson, Ben Cohen, Lauchlin Currie, Harold Ickes and Averell Harriman.

The former treasury secretary said he was supported by John Garner, Cordell Hull, James Farle and Henry Wallace in asking for reassurance to business.

Morgenthau described several conversations he had with the President on the subject. Once he wrote, Roosevelt said he had been told "business was deliberately causing the depression in order to hold a post at his head and force a retreat from the New Deal."

Despite these disagreements, Morgenthau wrote he and the President "were in total agreement on all other broad questions. We shared the same deep conviction that the first concern of government would be the masses of the people."

The former treasury secretary told of an incident in January, 1936, when Roosevelt was fighting for relief funds. The President told him that he had been phoning some congressional leaders about what might happen if insufficient relief funds were voted.

The President said Representative Clarence Cannon, ranking Democrat on the House appropriations committee, had asked him if he would take less than $24 millions he had asked Congress for WPA.

Roosevelt referred to his budget message, said he would stick by it. Then he jokingly added that when the WPA hunger marchers moved into Washington, he would put up a sign in front of the White House reading "WPA Need Not Apply Here," with an arrow pointing to Capitol Hill.

Cannon went up on the Hill, the President said, and repeated the story. As a result, Congress was angered and voted to cut the appropriation.

Coal Miners Strike Continues in Scotland

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Striking coal miners in Scotland postponed tonight a "be loyal to your union" rally and decided to continue their week-long wildcat strike which has closed 43 pits and left more than 13,000 miners idle.

Emrys Hughes, a Laborite member of Parliament pleaded with the strikers at a meeting in South Ayrshire to end the walkout and not disrupt the national union of mine workers.

On a vote, however, the miners chose to remain out until at least Tuesday to "test a statement by union leaders that unless we return to work tomorrow we lose half pay and also a bonus" of about one pound ($4).
